When he saw someone carrying a load of books, he would carry some for them. Jack would help old people climb stairs whenever he saw them facing a problem while doing so. He would also pick up wrappers littered around in the classroom and throw them in the dustbin to make sure that the place was clean. He would carry shopping bags for his mother so that she was comfortable. One day his mother stopped him and said, "Jack, may God bless you. You help others and you are a good boy. That is very special about you." Jack was so happy that he smiled all day long.
